ASCA Women's Symposium Sponsored by GAIN Swim Returns September 2 at 2025 World Clinic in Reno

Empowering, Inspiring, and Connecting Women Coaches at All Levels

The American Swimming Coaches Association (ASCA) is proud to announce the return of its popular Women's Symposium Sponsored by GAIN Swim, taking place Tuesday, September 2 from 8:30 AM to 3:00 PM at the Peppermill Reno Resort in Reno, Nevada. This impactful event is part of the 2025 ASCA World Clinic and offers a unique opportunity for women coaches to connect, learn, and grow alongside some of the most dynamic leaders in our sport.

This year's symposium features a powerful speaker lineup, including:

- Christen Shefchunas, confidence coach and former collegiate swim coach, known for helping athletes and coaches unlock their potential through self-belief and purpose.
- Andi Kawamoto-Klatt, presenting on age group standards and using professional development as a coaching compass.
- Emilie Hoeper, sharing insight on dryland training and building program continuity from the bottom up.
- MacKenzie Novell & Amanda Caldwell, co-leading a discussion on crafting your personal coaching philosophy.
- Mary Korey, detailing her inspiring path from swim lesson instructor to head coach.

"This event is designed to uplift and support women in coaching," said ASCA CEO Jennifer LaMont. "Whether you're new to the deck or a seasoned leader, the Women's Symposium offers community, mentorship, and tools to help you thrive."

In addition to expert-led sessions, attendees will enjoy a networking lunch and a supportive environment to connect with fellow women coaches across the country.

Registration is $150 and includes lunch. Coaches can sign up for the Women's Symposium when registering for the full World Clinic or separately via the ASCA World Clinic website.
